Alfred Rowan, the Man Shot by Lizzie Harris, Dies in a Hospital.

Alfred Rowan, a day laborer, who was shot in the chest Tuesday night at his home, died yesterday morning at his home.

The man who was shot in the chest Tuesday night at his home, died yesterday morning at his home.

Both Rowan and Lizzie Harris declared that the shooting was accidental, although it is said she is under surveillance.

Should Rowan die Lizzie Harris can be held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

A telegram received from Norfolk last night, which occurred at the hospital, was taken.

Lizzie Harris returned to the city Tuesday to the jail and offered to surrender herself, but she was allowed to go.

Before he died Rowan stated that his mark was a written statement and affidavit, which he had given to the police.

Lizzie Harris was in a room to which she was taken, and she was found dead in the room.

Although the shooting is said to have been accidental, Harris may have been answering a charge of involuntary manslaughter for the law does not consider a dangerous weapon.
